ICDL 2019

DIGITAL TRANSFORMATION FOR AN AGILE ENVIRONMENT

November 6–8, 2019 | New Delhi

teri | THE ENERGY AND RESOURCES INSTITUTE

Creating Innovative Solutions for a Sustainable Future

Background

Digital transformation is about revolutionising the way organisations and institutions are continuously changing internal operations and activities, addressing need of various stakeholders, and embracing new trends and technologies. An agile approach is to roll out new initiatives across the organization, which will ensure all team members to quickly adapt and deliver key product and service innovations and survive in a rapidly developing digital world.

The goal of Digital Transformation outlines four major objectives:

• To increase opportunities to share innovative practices and concepts across the profession, nationally and internationally, and among all libraries.
• To increase recognition of and support for experimentation with innovative and transformational ideas.
• To help libraries make use of new and emerging technologies by promoting and supporting technological experimentation and innovation.
• To increase leadership development and training opportunities designed to support the on-going transformation of libraries.

The process of using digitized information to make established ways of working simpler and more efficient is called digitalization. Digitalization isn't about changing how you do business, or creating new types of businesses, but provide faster and better ways to access your data instantly and not trapped in a file cabinet somewhere in a dusty archive.

About ICDL

TERI in collaboration with multiple government, corporate and private organizations is organizing the 6th edition of ICDL 2019.

In every 3 years, ICDL conference was held with contemporary topics which have global relevance with localized focus. It has gathered digital luminaries across the globe, visionary policy makers, major corporates and meticulous learners at a single collaborative platform for shared knowledge and benefits. ICDL has produced specific and implementable recommendations in Government and civil society, which had helped Indian digital library communities to develop skills, shape their knowledge and reach out to international collaborations.

Further to this, ICDL 2019 has identified Industry 4.0 as one of the key areas where digital transformation is undergoing a paradigm shift. In order to achieve SDGs, digital disruptions, application of analytics, artificial intelligence and IoT applications are taking place in manufacturing and service oriented industries in many processes.

The other major focus of ICDL is always being exploring new challenging areas in contemporary development and bridge the digital divide thus created. In the past years, ICDL emphasized on digital library development, preservation and access, and knowledge management.

3339 delegates participated in ICDL | 500 experts from over 62 countries | 150 sponsors / collaborators

2004 | 2006 | 2010 | 2013 | 2016

One of the key recommendations of ICDL 2016 was data and information form the foundations of all activities related to SDGs. It was opined that data and information are the drivers for:

1. Research, education, and lifelong learning
2. Business, government, and decision-making in every sector
3. Empowering everyone in society including youth, women, and people with special needs

ICDL 2019: Digital Transformation for an Aglie Environment

What's New in 2019

Stretching the recommendation of generation and usage of data and technologies in libraries to meet SDG goals in future, this year ICDL emphasized on Digital Transformation for an Agile Environment. Digital Transformation is about revolutionizing the way organizations and institutions are continuously changing internal operations and activities, addressing the needs of various stakeholders, and embracing new trends and technologies in a sustainable way. An agile approach is to roll out new initiatives across the organization, which will ensure that all stakeholders to quickly adapt, deliver key product and service innovations and survive in a rapidly developing digital world.
