

Roshni Udyavar is Head, Rachana Sansad's Institute of Environmental Architecture, Mumbai since June 2003. She has a Masters Degree in Architecture (M.Arch.) from the Academy of Architecture, Mumbai She is a qualified Master Trainer and Empanelled Expert on the Energy Conservation Building Codes of India awarded by the Bureau of Energy Efficiency (BEE)-UNDP-GEF, Govt. of India (February 2015).

She headed the Sustainable Development Program (1997-2003) at the International Institute for Sustainable Future, a United Nations NGO DPI affiliated organization based in Mumbai and New York.

Roshni heads the RSIEA's Research & Design Cell – key projects undertaken by RSIEA under her leadership include: the Dahisar River Restoration Project, Sawantwadi Ecotourism development, Restoration of Charolette lake in Matheran, Fishing Village at Navabaug, Vengurla, and 'Harvest to Harness' Rainwater Harvesting Competition. She was a team member for developing the ECOHOUSING ratings - green building technical criteria for Pune and Mumbai, 2005.

Roshni has delivered lectures at the University of Vienna, Austria, the Arizona State University, USA, the New York University (NYU), USA, Hong Kong University & Bezalel University, Jerusalem. She is a member of several government committees and co-authored the book, 'Survival at Stake: An Anthology of Essays by Rashmi Mayur' in 2012.